

Catherine Flynn Morrison Memorial Scholarship

ABOUT THE FUND

Catherine Flynn Morrison spent her 46-year teaching career in a small country school where many of her students came from less fortunate backgrounds. She took those children under her wing and worked tirelessly to help prepare them for a college education, especially to become school teachers like herself.

To honor that legacy, a scholarship fund has been created through Your Community Foundation (YCF) that will benefit hard-working Harrison County students who want to become teachers and may need financial help to attend college

Catherine Morrison “worked with the conviction that she had the charge to keep both boys and girls under her supervision,” according to those who spoke at her memorial service. “She exercised an enthusiasm that pulled things out of the mediocre and the commonplace to the threshold of perfection and excellence. Catherine gave of herself in the classroom to create something of great value, and she left an indelible imprint upon all that she touched.”
